Expert Panel Discusses Innovations in Cancer Research

Science Symposium Marks the American Cancer Society's 100th Birthday

WHAT: As the American Cancer Society celebrates 100 years of saving lives from cancer, it will host a special science symposium: Research and the Fight Against Cancer. The symposium will bring together a renowned panel of experts to explore past successes, the present state of affairs, and future challenges in cancer research.

WHO: Panelists will include:

- Olufunmilayo I. Olapade, M.D., Walter L. Palmer Distinguished Service Professor of Medicine and Human Genetics at the University of Chicago. (Bio)
- Graham C. Walker, PhD, an American Cancer Society professor and Howard Hughes professor from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. (Bio)
- David F. Ransohoff, M.D., Professor of Medicine and Epidemiology at the University of North Carolina, and an expert in colon cancer screening. (Bio)
- Vincent T. DeVita, M.D., Volunteer President for the American Cancer Society and the Amy and Joseph Perella professor of medicine at Yale Cancer Center. (Bio)
- Otis W. Brawley, M.D., Chief Medical and Scientific Officer for the American Cancer Society and professor of hematology, oncology, medicine and epidemiology at Emory University. (Bio)
- Elizabeth Cohen (Host), Senior Medical Correspondent for CNN's Health, Medical and Wellness unit and author of the Empowered Patient column. (Bio)

WHEN: May 22, 2013, 4:00- 5:00 PM EDT.

WHERE: Hilton Atlanta Downtown: 255 Courtland Street, NE (Grand Ballroom East), Atlanta, Georgia 30303

The program will be available via webcast. Link: http://tinyurl.com/ACS100.

Follow @ACSNEWS on Twitter and hashtag #ACS100 for symposium updates.